JEROME ATTACKS MAYOR SETH LOW.

Says in Letter to Citizens' Union That Fusion Candidate Cannot Possibly Win.

ASKS THAT HE BE RETIRED.

Dwells on His Great Personal Unpopularity, and Says He Is an Example of Egotism and Pusillanimity.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Sept. 15.-Having waited a week for his anger to cool and finding his ardor undiminished, District Attorney Jerome to-night launched his widely advertised thunderbolt at the head of the amiable Mayor Low.

It is a very long thunderbolt, zig-zaeging acrose the entire political firmament of the city, and it undoubtedly will have a very serious effect on the fortunes of fusion whether Mayor Low heads the anti-Tammany ticket or not.

The object of Mr. Jerome's attack, which is in the form of a letter to a member of the Citizens' Union, is to compel the retirement of the Mayor from the campaign. Mayor Low's friends scarcely will know him in the mirror in which Mr. Jerome holds him up. He is presented as an example of egotism, self-complacency, timidity and pusilianimity to be avoided by all courageous men and voters. He is the disturbing force in the factory; he is the most unpopular candidate that could be selected; he will get no money for his campaign; he will get no votes; he will be knifed by Republicans and Democrats

Mr. Jerome dwells on the great personal unpopularity of the Mayor. He says that if his unpopularity arose from his adherence to the principles of fusion and reform, he ought to be renominated. As it comes from other sources and as it is apparent to all sensible men that the Mayor will be defeated, the campaign-if he re mains the candidate-will be commenced in insincerity and ended in defeat.

DEVERY DEFEATED. Jerome's attack is looked upon by Tam many followers as the break-up and windup of fusion in this city, particularly since Jerome, more than any other individual, contributed to the success of the Low ticket two years ago.

Comptroller Grout returned from Europe to-day and withheld his decision as to his willingness to run for Comptroller on the fusion ticket. Mr. Jerome's letter is timed to effect Mr. Grout's mind if he is wavering. If Mr. Grout decides to run, it is possible that Mayor Low will then decline, and, in that case, there will be another deal all around, with entirely new men for all the city offices. The primaries of all parties were held to-day. Nearly all the old Tammany leaders were re-elected. Tammany Hall rejoiced in the apparent defeat of William S. Devery in the primary election in the Ninth Assembly District, and the friends of Charles F. Murphy congratulated him on the overthrow of John B. Sexton, another opponent of Murphy's elevation to the leadership. Devery's defeat was looked upon as an indication of a reunited Tammany front in the coming elections and will strengthen the hands of Charles F. Murphy in handling the mayoralty problem.

FITZGIBBON MEETS IRISH PHYSICAL FORCE | FADER.

City Register and Patrick Hoctor to Seek Scalp of John F. Finerty at Robert Emmet Centenary

REPUBLIC SPECIAL New York, Sept. 15 .- City Register P. R. FitzGibbon of St. Louis has been here for several days. He came with a delega tion of Irishmen prominent in Clan-Na-Gael circles to meet Patrick Hoctor of Dublin, Ireland, who landed here on the Campania Saturday.

Mr. Hoctor is regarded as the leader of the Physical Force party in Ireland and is at present devoting himself to an effort to take the scalp of John F. Finerty of Chicago.

Messrs. Hoctor and FitzGibbon were in Ireland lately as envoys of the Clan-Na-Gael, and Mr. Finerty made some disparaging remarks about them in his paper. Mr. Finerty is to be in New York on next Sunday at the meeting to be held in honor of the centenary of Robert Emmet. His opponents will have a counter demonstration and try to make things pleasant for him.

Mrs. William McWhorter of Chicago, who has been prominent on the advanced side of Irish politics, will land here tomorrow on the Oceanic, She will be met by these gentlemen and other Nationalists and given a reception. Mr. FitzGibbon refused to be interviewed this afternoon and said he would be home in a few days. Ireland lately as envoys of the Clan-Na-bond of $1,000 to answer a charge of grand larceny.

Antram and Dooley were standing at Ninth and Mullanphy street when they saw Huber and Formanack driving rapidly north on Ninth street. The detectives decided to follow the men in the wagon, but saw that they would be outdistanced if they pursued them on foot.

Across the street a young man was climbing into a runabout. Antram ran over to him and making known his business, the young man whipped up his horse and the chase began. Dooley jumped into a delivery wagon going the same way.

At Ninth and Madison streets Antram overtook the wagon driven by Huber. He leaped from the runabout and caught the reins of Huber's horse. Huber attempted to drive his horse over the detective, but Antram held on and drew his revolver. He then climbed into the wagon and covered the two men.

on the American stage are George Broderick and Maybella Baker, who are seen at the Olympic theater this week in "A Chinese Honeymoon."

Miss Baker, who is, in real life, Mrs. George Broderick, is "the official motherin-law" in the comic opera of the Orient, while Mr. Broderick is the funny Emperor of Ylang-Ylang.

By a singular coincidence, Mr. and Mrs Broderick have been seen annually in St. Louis ever since 1888. They have played in St. Louis so often, Mr. Broderick says, that they know the names of the streets and can find the Mississippi River without thinking twice.

Mr. and Mrs. Broderick were seen at Uhrig's Cave several seasons ago for a limited time. They have been associated with numerous traveling organizations and by some strange hook or crook the organizations always play in St. Louis. He was engaged to Miss Baker before he left America, although the contract was not sanctioned by the parents of the bride-to-be.

Miss Baker's parents, who lived in Aurora, Ill., were strict members of a church, and they thought that stage folk were "awful people." Up to this time Miss Baker had sung onlonly in concerts and choirs. It happened that she was to go to Chicago three days prior to the close of Mr. day she departed for Chicago she sent a telegram to Broderick saying that she would be in Chicago the following day. When Broderick received the telegram he began to calculate like the hero in a melodrama. "If I meet her in Chicago I'll make her marry me on the spot," quoth he to himself.

But his New York engagement would not end for three days. There was an obstacle. Broderick's New York engagement. The obstacle.

Broderick paid a hurried visit to the booking offices and located an Italian, who was capable of singing his part. He had not secured a leave of absence, but he didn't care. He gave to the Italian a note to the manager and explained that the bearer would take his place.

"I have gone to Chicago; important business," was the closing sentence. Broderick's manager had to make the best of the situation, so the Italian was assigned to the work of the missing man. Broderick, in the meantime, was speeding toward Chicago, and when he reached that city all plans carried. He and Miss Baker were married, and the panied by Children, Assaults Girl, Whose Male Escort Escapes.

A hair-pulling, hatpin stabbing, umbrella-smashing fight between two women caused much excitement on Sixth street between Locust and St. Charles last evening at 7 o'clock.

Apparently there was a man in the case. He was about 30 years old and accompanied a woman ten years his junior. When midway of the block on the east side of the street the couple encountered a woman in black with two children.

The attack began at once. The woman in black wielded a closed umbrella upon the younger and more comely woman, who retreated into the street, followed by her escort. So furious was the attack that the umbrella was broken to pieces and thrown

The younger woman retreated to the sidewalk, weers her male companion still lingered, uncertain what to do. The woman in black fellowed and, drawing a formidable hatpin, made thrusts at the man and then the woman.

Both women were strangely silent. Neither screamed nor called names. Even when the younger suffered pain from a vicious pull at her hair, she made no outcry and seemed anxious to get away.

She started to escape through the crowd and had all but succeeded when the woman in black rushed upon her and dragged her back by the hair.

Then the aggressor drew her hatpin and made a swift lunge at the other woman. The steel pierced her neck at the shoulder and the blood trickled down upon her white shirt waist until it was cribson.

Even under this punishment the attacked

Even under this punishment the attacked made no exclamation of pain. The crowd had become thicker and the man in the case, having most of the attention diverted to the women, slipped through the circle of speciators and retreated toward Olive street, where he rounded a corner out of sight. out of sight.

The younger woman again tried to escape, but was caught oy the hair. A fisticuff had begun when one of the crowd of men separated them and told the woman in black that if she did not leave the police would be on the scene and arrest
